

Aboriginal Legal Services Red Deer

Aboriginal Legal Services Red Deer - Tort law cases handle civil wrongs. Like for instance, if you have sustained an injury or undue harm as a consequence of negligence or intentional wrongdoing by another individual, you could be qualified for damage compensation in a tort law case.

Negligence resulting in medical malpractice, personal injury and car accidents is the most common kind of tort law case. Our tort law lawyers can help you determine who charges should be laid against and who is responsible for your damages. Even parties indirectly involved with an action that caused you harm may be held responsible for damages. For example, the driver behind the wheel of a delivery truck can be held responsible for harming you in an accident, but so can the employer that hired the driver. Numerous parties may, in some situations, be charged with negligence for the harm that you sustain.

Our tort law lawyers are skilled and really experienced in tort law cases. Get in touch with us for an assessment if you have been adversely impacted by a civil wrong. We will help you to know your legal options and guide you throughout all parts of the tort law case.